Out For Blood

The organ of British Imperialism in China the "Peking and Tientsin Times" in its issue of April 1st. returns to the question of the future of the First Kuominchun and this time frankly expresses as its own opinion, and therefore we may presume of those whose interests it represents that the First Kuominchun must be destroyed as a fighting unit. Not only does it thus openly intervene in the internal strife in China but it as frankly makes it known to the anti-national forces that the imperialists will not for the time being object to having their sacred rights violated and to continue to be cut off from the outside world amidst "hordes of barbarians" if that will facilitate the achievement of the end desired by both.

What a howl there was when communication was cut off at the time of the Kuominchun's victorious advance; and the measures of defence taken by that army at Taku called forth an ultimatum the direct result of which was the beginning of the retreat of the Kuominchun and the indirect result the murderous shooting down of unarmed and peaceful boys and girls. Now however, there is no objection to the cutting of communications and a benign indifference to the violations of treaties.

Again, at the very moment when the population of Peking is panic stricken at the prospect of the entry of the so-called Allied Armies into the city and are hoping against hope that the First Kuominchun will not leave it, the imperialists are deliberately encouraging, nay hounding on the militarists to attack Peking knowing, that this will involve severe fighting and destruction of life and property. When the advance of the national forces even remotely threatened the property of the imperialists they immediately stood upon their so-called rights and fixed neutral zones in such a manner as to place the national forces in a strategically hopeless position at the mercy of their enemies. That was the fate of Kuo Sung-lin, and his troops. But now there is no talk of neutral zones and the prohibition of fighting in the area in which foreign interests are likely to suffer. On the contrary, the militarists are urged to sweep with their hordes through Peking and then on to Kalgan and through the Nankow Pass to crush and annihilate the Kuominchun. The imperialists are out for blood. They think they have their prey down and their hunting instinct is roused. They are eager to be in at the

That we are not exaggerating will be seen by the following extract from the leading article in the "Peking and Tientsin Times":

"While a Chinese and foreigners alike are anxious for the early restoration of peace and of normal conditions on the railways it is obvious that any compromise that left the Kuominchun forces intact and in possession of Kalgan and the Nankow Pass would contain the seeds of further strife. And from the point of view of the Allied leaders there is much to be said for a fight to finish .....we may expect that the Allied militarists to reject all compromise and secure their position in North China by the occupation of Suiyuan, Dolon-nor and Jehol."

This is downright incitement to the continuation of war and bears out our claim that the imperialists deliberately stir up the troubled waters of Chinese politics in order that they may continue to fish to their own advantage. This talk about "fighting to a finish" in order to secure a "permanent peace" is reminiscent of the talk during the world war, and the mess in which Europe is in today as a result of the

But, in their elation at the immediate prospect of victory over the national movement in China the imperialists are reckoning without their hosts. Only to their intoxication can one ascribe their expectation, at this stage of all others in the devious course of the history of China, that anything in the nature of a "finish" will be achieved. "Fight to finish" implies a definite aim and only the other day the "Peking and Tientsin Times" admitted that the militarists had no other aim except the satisfaction of their ambitions. Already the "Alliance" is cracking at every joint, strained to breaking point by the rivalries of the ambitious militarists. Moreover the Kuominchun is not beaten yet. It can still be relied upon to give a good account of itself. Certainly it is far too early to picture this splendid fighting force scattered before the winds, or broken up and its parts "incorporated in the Allied armies". Oaly the truculent mind of jackboot imperialism can conceive anything of this kind at this stage of the struggle. Besides the Kuominchun possess an asset which no other army in the present struggle possesses and that is the moral support of the people. If a poll of the people could be taken on this score, there is no doubt as to where their choice would lie. This the imperialist enemies of the Kuominchun grudgingly are compelled to confess; hence it becomes clearly evident that in plotting against the Kuominchun they are plotting against the people of

The Kuominchun is not routed yet. Whatever the outcome of the immediate struggle may be the Kuominchun will preserve itself intact as a fighting unit and its association with the people will become closer than it has ever been before.

In the meantime this open intervention of the imperialists on the side of the reactionary militarists will sink deep down into the consciousness of the people. The people of China have shown that they are a power. Combined with the recuperated strength of the National Army it will reveal its power again, and then, perhaps, it will be time to talk of a finish; but it will be a finish that neither the militarists nor the imperialists desire.

Not Merely Those In Need, But Others Work As Protest Against Old Attitude Toward Womankind

Constantinople.-Turkish society women by their own exampe are helping to destroy the doctrine of the old Turkey that toil is undignified.

Under the empire, work was considered degrading for men of good family and unthinkable for women. Therefore, business was left to the Greeks, Jews and Armenians.

With the abolition of Government sinecures under the republic, and the loss of fortunes after the recent chain of wars, many Turks of good family have forced to set to work.

Moreover, such is the changed spirit of the times that many more - particularly among the women-have taken jobs no because of financial need, but through a growing distaste for

She is proving that Turkish establishments can compete successfully with the Jewish and Greek houses of long standing, and she is giving employment to Turkish girls only.

Another Turkish girl of high society who works because she wants to is Beraet Ekrem, daughter of Ali Ekrem Bey, former Secretary to Sultan Abdul Hamid and one-time Governor of Jerusalem, and grance aughter of Namick Kemal, Turkey's most famous poet. She has thrown aside her leadership in the younger set of Constantinople society to enter a bank, where she works as an ordinary clerk.

Fifi Djenani, daughter of the SITE FOR NEW Minister of Commerce, who is also a man of wealth, is studying medicine at the University of Stamboul. Another society girl, Nimette Vahid, has become Turkey's first professional woman singer. .
